Advanced training methods

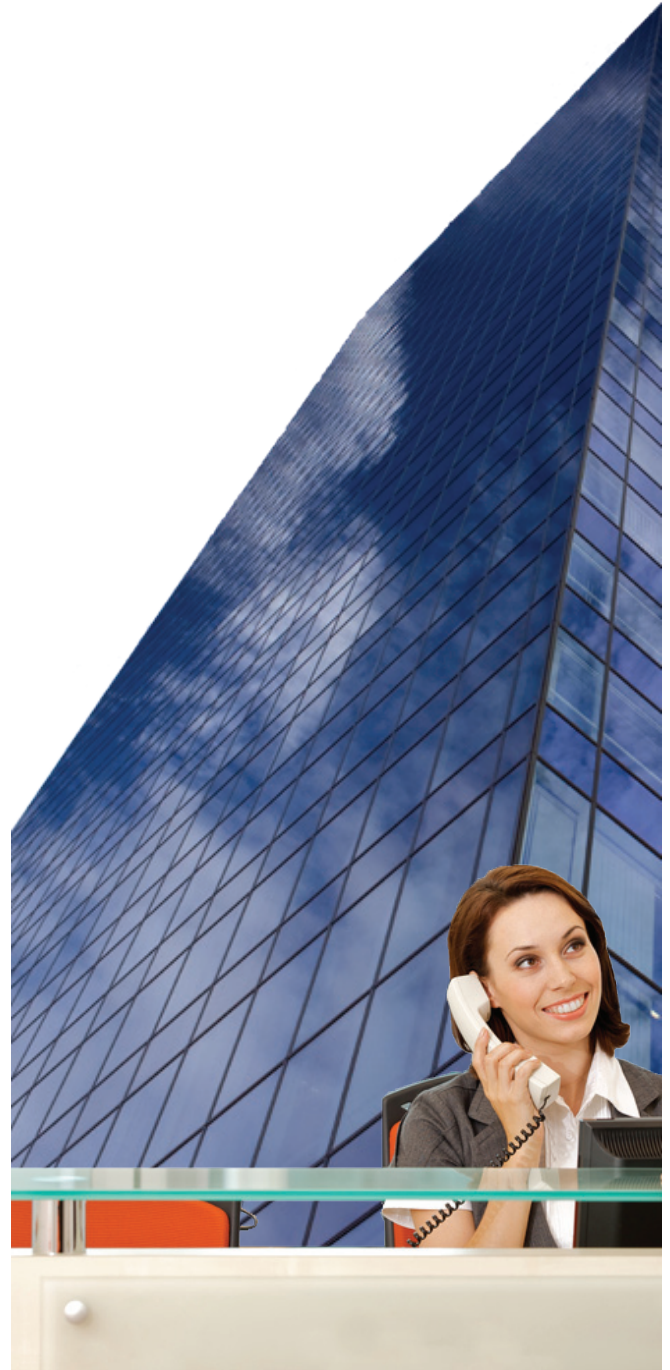

From day one, employees of The Millennium Group are trained in procedure, technology and the philosophy of service excellence. Outstanding customer service is at the core of each strategic business unit offered by The Millennium Group, and employees are well versed before reaching a client's facility.

The Millennium Group enrolls all employees into a comprehensive training program consisting of several key elements focused on advancing the ability of our well-vetted candidates. Additionally, each employee is cross-trained in other disciplines. This practice makes each employee more versatile and knowledgeable about not only their job, but the greater service approach.

Throughout the year, employees will attend our Employee Development Program. This program includes continuous training and education events designed to keep employees up-to-date on technology and procedures, and refresh their scope of work understanding.

Quality Management Program

The Millennium Group utilizes the most comprehensive Quality Management Program in the facilities and document management industry. Comprised of feedback methods, reporting tools, dynamic metrics and related management controls, no other service provider comes close to our ability to track and maintain established SLAs.
